Nos mudamos casi al mismo tiempo, e ibas a la escuela con mi hijo.

Cada mañana Ana María y yo los acompañabamos hasta la parada del bus.

Al año siguiente, ya más grandes, no deseaban que los acompañemos. Yo no esperaba la llegada del bus, Ana Maria si. Deseaba estar segura que subias, porque ella siempre estaba para cuidarte.

Excelente madre... Por siempre lo será.

Isabella vivió poco, y es muy triste. Siempre sonreía, con su carita iluminada.

Si, Isabella vivió poco, pero tuvo la suerte de tener una mamá perfecta... Fue su Ángel guardián.

You stopped by on the edge of a hurricane, making an impression only such an arrival could make. We were amazed at such beauty, charm, grace and wit packaged in such a young person. Ava shared with me a memory of you two flipping bottles until 1:00am that night, reminding me that the flesh can be physically gone but never the life lived and the memories shared. May your soul rest in eternal peace while our families find peace, love, and comfort in each others arms and the arms of our Lord. Because that is exactly the way you'd want it :- ) God Speed dear 'Bella'...

I remember the first time Bella's bubbly self came out of nowhere and commented on how she liked my hair and as silly as it sounds, that's how me and her started becoming friends last summer. It's hard to find someone who's so open to be nice to someone they don't know. From the start of meeting her she was the nicest girl I have ever met. She had such a beautiful soul and never wished bad on anybody she came across. We could go on for hours talking about YouTube, school, boys, shoes (especially Vans), and anything girls like to talk about. She's going to shine up in heaven like an angel, just like she did when she was here with us. Bella, I miss and love you so much. You're bubbly personality is going to stand out in heaven. You do you and don't let anybody bring you down up there. You're a special girl Bella and I know you're up there watching over all of us and your family. Life isn't the same without your presence, and it will never be but one day we will meet again. You and your family are always in my thoughts and prayers. Rest easy my angel. As we always said to each other, "I love you long time 5ever".

one random night, probably around 1 am, I slid up on Bella's story. we got to talking and we talked for hours quoting vines and such. in that first conversation, she told me one of her favorite vines was the rice krispie treat one, which I had never heard of before this day. On the day that she passed, that vine, which I haven't seen in months, randomly popped up, and I knew it was Bella's way of saying hey. she had a way about her. a quirk, that made everyone love her the second they met her. she lit up a room. she was gorgeous. and her and her beautiful soul will be missed forever.

I remember on the first day of 8th grade I saw bella, the most beautiful girl I've seen. I saw her in my 5th period (science) and my 7th period (art). in art we sat next to each other and I couldn't help but say hi. we talked about how we both had clear braces and random things about our past lives and we instantly became friends. in science we ended up sitting next to each other for most of the year and every day we shared so many laughs and memories. sometimes she would give me advice and she really helped me become who I am today. we would always pass notes quoting our favorite vines and memes and we would always burst out laughing. we even ended up doing science fair together, and it was the most fun science fair I've ever had. Bella was everyone's friend and she could light up a room with her beautiful smile. I remember walking into the orthodontist, and seeing bella walking out without braces. she truly was gorgeous. I had so much fun all the times we've seen each other at the beach. she had the biggest heart filled with kindness and love she wanted to share with the world and she would. she has made such a positive impact on everyone she's met.

we love you Bella

Bella was such a light. She was my best friend for years until she moved, and she even taught me how to rollerblade. I looked like a baby deer stumbling around at her birthday party and she helped me out. She's the reason i can skate today. She was the kindest person I've ever met.

Isabella you will definitely be missed. My memory with you took place at your grandparents place with your Mom being present.

You were playing the piano and I decided to ballet dance to your music. Everyone laughed, and your Mom tried to show me how to do leaps. Then, you decided to show me. But, having feet of cement and no ballet skills, I stopped. It was an exercise of futility and a laugh for all, especially you.
