Equilibrium Refinements in Computational Game Theory

Peter Bro Miltersen

Aarhus University, Denmark

Abstract

A classical topic of game theory is the study of equilibrium refinements, strengthening the notion of Nash equilibrium. We give an overview of this field and discuss computational aspects of equilibrium refinements and applications of such computations. Several open problems will be discussed.